INTRODUCTORY.

In presenting to the public GOULD'S McLEAN COUNTY DIRECTORY for 1875-6, I wish to call attention to the fact that it is not a history or sketch of the county, but a directory, giving all desired information for the business man, and guide for strangers as well as others seeking information.

The book has assumed large proportions, although the matter contained therein has been condensed as much as possible. Great pains and no small amount of capital has been expended to make it complete and reliable in all respects; of course I do not claim perfection, as errors are ever liable to creep in.

In view of the fact that since commencing the canvass on this work rains have been copious, and storms of exceeding frequency, I need not ask pardon for the delay in publication.

The book is invaluable to the business man, especially the County Department and Business Register, the former giving the correct postoffice address of the residents throughout the county, and the latter showing the business enterprise of the inhabitants, and in which will be found the latest changes in business circles.

In point of population there is undoubtedly a large increase since the last census, and a fair estimate would give Bloomington 22,000, and the entire County 60,000.

Much might be written of McLean County, its present and future, had we the time and space to give the subject proper consideration.

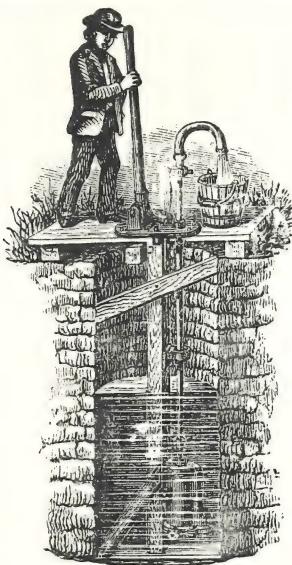

We can but refer you to the following pages as an index of the growth and prosperity of this, one of the richest and most productive counties in this State.

Thanking you one and all for your kindness in furnishing the information for this work, and to my patrons for their support,

I remain respectfully yours,

DAVID B. GOULD, Publisher.

"The reading tables have been furnished as well as the funds at our command seemed to justify. During the entire year we have taken seven dailies, nine weeklies, fourteen monthlies, and six quarterlies. These, as well as all the books in the Library have been free to all every week day during the year from 2 to 9 p. m. The whole number of persons availing themselves of the advantages offered them during the year has been fully 47,000, or an increase of over 17,000 within two years. During the past winter the attendance at the Library rooms has averaged over 1,000 persons a week, a very large proportion of whom would be without instructive books and papers or even an unexceptionable place of resort, were it not for our Association. With suitable accommodations it is believed that this number, large as it is, would be much increased the coming year."
